

ATLAST Contributors

All of the ATLAST workshop participants have been contributors in some way. The early workshops (1992–94) focused on developing computer exercises and projects. A large percent of those workshop participants developed and submitted computer exercises for inclusion in the ATLAST collection. It's not possible to assign credit to every exercise or project individually, because many of these submissions were actually the result of collaborative efforts during workshops and because many people submitted similar exercises. For example, eight participants independently submitted similar projects on using matrices to send coded messages. Therefore we include a list of all participants.

All of the participants in the 1994 Developers Workshop deserve special recognition for substantial contributions to the first edition of this book. Accordingly, we provide a separate listing of these individuals. The participants were divided into five working groups. Each group developed exercises, projects, and MATLAB programs relating to a specific area of linear algebra.

The participants in the seven 1995–97 workshops developed sets of lesson plans that use software to enhance classroom presentations. Many of these lesson plans have been adapted into exercises and projects for this book. As in the first phase of the ATLAST Project, a number of participants were invited back for advanced developers' workshops which were held during the summers of 1996 and 1997.
